OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY TO THE PRESIDENT

New Delhi, the 26th September 1956

No. 29-Pres/56.—The President is pleased to approve the award of the ASHOKA CHAKRA, Class I, to the undermentioned NCO for most conspicuous bravery at Hussainiwala Headworks near Ferozepore, Punjab:

(The effective date of the award is given in brackets against the name).

No. 15103 A/L/Naik SUNDAR SINGH, 4 Bn The J & K Infantry—(19th March, 1956)

On the night of 18/19 March, 1956 the position occupied by our troops on the BELA, at HUSSAINIWALA Headworks, near Ferozepore was attacked. Our troops beat back the first onslaught and dislodged the attackers from the right guide bund with the exception of the nose and the right end of the guide bund.

2. The attackers established a Light Machine Gun nest at the nose and from there swept by fire the Bela, right guide bund and the boat point on the left guide bund across the river.

3. The holding of the bund and the plying of boats across the river for the much needed replenishment of ammunition and evacuation of casualties became extremely difficult in the face of this fire. The nest seriously threatened the safety of our troops on the Bela.

4. An assault by our troops towards the nose was held up by very heavy fire from the light machine gun nest and no further movement was possible. At this stage volunteers were called for to try and knock out the light machine gun nest. The name of No. 15103 A/L/Nk Sundar Singh who was at the time in the platoon holding the central sector of the bund and who was known for his bravery and courage during 1947 was suggested. He was summoned and he readily volunteered for the task. He took six hand grenades and crawled approximately one hundred yards over the fire-swept bund towards the light machine gun nest at the nose and then crawled another 50 yards through the territory held by the other side, scaling over the pile of stones lying on the right bund. When he had closed in sufficiently to the post he threw the grenades and effectively silenced the light machine gun, killing all the three attackers manning it. Not being satisfied with this, at considerable personal risk, he went forward to the light machine gun nest, recovered the light machine gun, two bren magazine boxes and 14 bren gun magazines. The action of L/NK Sundar Singh enabled our troops to occupy the nose. On his return to the Coy HQ he intimated that three numbers with the gun had been killed. He then returned to the gun position three times and brought back the three dead bodies also.

The NCO showed great presence of mind, complete disregard for his personal safety and courage of the highest order. Had it not been for the bravery, courage, determination and complete disregard for personal safety displayed by this NCO, it may not have been possible to secure the nose, the most vital position on the right guide bund.

No. 30-Pres/56.—The President is pleased to approve the award of the ASHOKA CHAKRA, Class II, to the undermentioned personnel for acts of gallantry during the civil disturbances, 1947-48:

(The effective date of the awards is given in brackets against the names)

IO-56978, Jem SHAM BAHADUR SINGH, 2 Bn The Bihar Regiment, (Posthumous)—(12th January 1948).

IO-56691, Jem SHEO PUJAN SINGH, 2 Bn The Bihar Regiment—(12th January 1948).

No. 31-Pres/56.—The President is pleased to approve the award of the ASHOKA CHAKRA, Class III, to the undermentioned Naval rating for an act of gallantry:

(The effective date of the award is given in brackets against the names)

Ag. L/S O No. 36621 MUTHU KRISHNAN, Indian Navy—(10th October 1953).

On the night of 10th October 1953 during a fireworks display in connection with the celebrations for the Naval Review, a low flying rocket from another ship struck the fore part of the bridge of I.N.S. RAJPUTANA and was deflected downwards into a box containing pyrotechnics on the fore-castle, causing an instantaneous fire.

Muthu Krishnan, Ag. Ldg. Seaman, O No. 36621, who was standing on the starboard side of the fore-castle, in complete disregard of personal safety, rushed towards the burning box and dragged it to the ship's side and threw it overboard. In doing so he suffered intensive burns and had to be removed to hospital.

The initiative displayed by the rating prevented the fire from spreading and saved the ship from severe damage.

The rating's initiative and devotion to duty at great personal risk is in keeping with the highest traditions of the service.

No. 32-Pres/56.—The President is pleased to approve the award of the ASHOKA CHAKRA, Class III, to the undermentioned Air Force Officer for an act of gallantry:

(The effective date of the award is given in brackets against the names)

Flight Lieutenant BRIAN JOSEPH CANNEL, No. 3463, Indian Air Force—(27th November 1955).

On 27th November 1955, Lt. B. Ahuja who was at Mechukha suddenly fell ill. The condition of the officer became very serious and, because of the primitive surface communications in that area his transfer to a hospital was considered possible only by air. Mechukha lies at an altitude of 6,400 ft. above sea level in the mountainous SIANG Division of the North East Frontier Agency. The only available stretch of open ground was a narrow, rough and undulating clearing of approximately 80 yards lying deep in a valley. It was obvious that a landing at this place would be fraught with danger but Lt. Brian Joseph Cannel had no hesitation in volunteering for this hazardous task.

2. On the morning of 27th November, 1955, Flt. Lt. Cannel left in an Auster aircraft for Mechukha and, after carrying out a difficult landing, had the patient placed in the aircraft. Flt. Lt. Cannel now faced the most difficult part of the rescue operation. He fully appreciated the fact that the take-off run was extremely short particularly as he was carrying a heavy load for his light aircraft and operating from a high altitude. On his first take-off run he realised that he had failed to build up sufficient flying speed and immediately abandoned the attempt. He pushed the aircraft back to the take-off point with the aid of local tribesmen, who also helped in clearing and levelling the ground further. On his second attempt he again realised the possibility of the aircraft not getting air-borne in time, but acting with firm determination, although the under carriage of his aircraft struck a ditch beyond the small strip, he managed to get air-borne by skilful piloting. He then flew back to base and landed safely with the patient who was immediately transferred to a hospital.

3. Such acts of courage and disregard for personal danger to save others are in the best traditions of the I.A.F.

No. 33-Pres/56.—The President is pleased to approve the award of the ASHOKA CHAKRA, Class III, to the undermentioned personnel for acts of gallantry performed in connection with flood relief work in the Punjab:

(The effective date of the awards is given in brackets against the names)

1. 3137127, Scout CHATRA RAM, 4 Border Scout Battalion—(7th October 1955).

2. 9302370, Scout TARA CHAND, 4 Border Scout Battalion—(7th October 1955).

3. 9302394, Scout SAUDAGAR SINGH, 4 Border Scout Battalion—(7th October 1955).

On 7th October 1955 at about 1100 hrs Scout CHATRA RAM was standing on the DERA BABA NANAK Rail-Road bridge, when he noticed, at a distance of 800 to 900 yards towards the village JALONANGAL, three civilians marooned on a tree crying for help and struggling for their lives against the flood waters of the river RAVI which had burst the right guide bund and also the railway embankment and was flooding all round in unprecedented fury. The whole area was a vast sheet of water.

From the bridge upto the tree there was swiftly flowing water about 8 to 10 feet deep and the long elephant grass normally about 10 to 12 feet tall, was almost entirely submerged. This greatly added to the hazard of swimming to the rescue of the three persons. Scout Chatra Ram with Scout Tara Chand and Scout Saudagar Singh volunteered to go to the rescue of these persons as it was certain that either the small tree on which they were sitting would soon be uprooted or the men would fall off it from sheer exhaustion or fear and be drowned.

The three Scouts roped themselves together and commenced swimming towards the tree. They had to battle against the fast current and the sharp blades of the elephant grass made swimming a torture. However, inspired by a great sense of humanitarianism and undeterred by the danger they continued on their mission. It took them over two hours to reach the tree. Having braved the torrent in reaching the tree they started back with the civilians which was an even more formidable task. Men with a lesser sense of selflessness might have given up but these Scouts struggled their way back and brought the civilians to safety. So strenuous was their mission that they collapsed on reaching their post.

Their disregard for personal safety and their will to undergo this ordeal of physical endurance will remain as an outstanding example of courage and determination.

No. 34-Pres/56.—The President is pleased to approve the award of the ASHOKA CHAKRA, Class III, to the undermentioned personnel for acts of gallantry during the civil disturbances, 1947-48:

4229842 Sepoy SHANKAR HEMBROM, 2 Bn The Bihar Regiment (Posthumous)—(12th January 1948).

IO-10419, Subedar KHEM CHAND, 3 Bn The Grenadiers—(3rd September 1947).

36907, Sepoy NARBIR SINGH, 2 Bn The Rajput Regiment (Posthumous)—(10th September 1947).

No. 35-Pres/56.—The President is pleased to approve the award of the ASHOKA CHAKRA, Class III, for an act of gallantry to:—

(The effective date of the award is given in brackets against the name)

Shri AKSHYA KUMAR SINGH, Student, Janardhan Janta College, Gandhinagar, District Ghazipur, Uttar Pradesh—(21st December 1953).

On the morning of the 21st December 1953, Shri Akshya Kumar Singh, a young student aged 14 of the Janardhan Janta College, Gandhinagar, Ghazipur, was passing along the railway track between the Railway Stations Tajpur Dehma and Karimuddinpur on his way to College when he noticed a gap in the railway line caused by the removal of fish plates. At that very time the Chapra-Banaras Cantonment Passenger was coming up the line and Shri Akshya Kumar Singh, who had no time to inform anybody, realising the magnitude of the possible disaster, at once stood up between the lines and signalled the driver to stop the train by waving his hands. This method having proved ineffective, he took off his shirt and began waving it vigorously. The driver of the train noticed the danger signal and was able to stop the train just in front of the young boy who did not move away from his position in spite of the danger to his life from the oncoming engine. The presence of mind, high sense of responsibility and courage shown by Shri Akshya Kumar Singh in averting a possible train disaster will ever remain a good example to others.
